isn't that a lovely stove!" exclaimed a lady in our store a short time ago, as she paused in front of one of the Michigan Stove Co's latest pattern cook stoves, and proceeded to critically inspect the same. All interested from the interior will be given reduced rates at Detroit hotels and boarding houses.

Complaints still continue over the new time-card of the Mich. Central, and a Dowagiac paper sums up the situation as follows:—"The Central people might have devised a more unaccommodating local service, but they doubtless never did, and there's kicking all along the line from Chicago to Detroit." Unless the predicted change of June 5 betters matters considerably, the kicking will go on with renewed vigor.

An infant industry has been started in this village by Masters Lee Stevens, Charlie Matthews, and Clare Anderson. This juvenile firm having formed a co-partnership, is constructing a large flat-bottomed boat on strictly scientific principles, and at its completion it is to be launched on the raging Paw Paw with all due formality, not omitting the traditional bottle of wine. Its owners confidently expect to realize a large revenue in '93 by plying between this place and the World's Fair city.

Quite an excitement was created on Main street yesterday morning by the violent out-cries of an insane man brought to Judge Heckert for the requisite entrance papers to the asylum, and a large crowd gathered about the carriage in which he sat. The unfortunate man was Ira Van Auken, brother of Mrs. Loyal Crane, and it seems that he has not been in his right mind for some time, but did not become violent until last Monday night. He was taken to the jail for safe keeping until his removal to Kalamazoo.

The concert given by the Eolian Quartet was thoroughly enjoyable, and the graceful demeanor of the young ladies won them as many compliments as did their sweet singing. The "Cuckoo Song" elicited the heartiest of the encores, and the power and depth of Miss Smith's contralto was greatly admired. The young miss who took the part of mezzo-contralto was substitute for a sick member of the quartet and did so remarkably well that no one would suspect her of having but two weeks' practice for this occasion. The quartet expect to spend the summer at the Chicago Conservatory of Music.

The Ladies' Lecture Association on last Friday found themselves in receipt of enough names to warrant them in laying out as extended a Course as that of last year, and its members are much encouraged over the interest evinced by this ready response on the part of the public. It was voted to have five lectures and two musical entertainments, and to make an effort to have the latter especially good, since this was the only feature of last season's course that was a disappointment. Although sufficient names have been received to insure a continuance, any additional ones will be gladly welcomed.

Miss Cora Ruggles, who has been having a six weeks' siege of typhoid fever, was last week able to come home, and reached Hartford on Thursday looking decidedly forlorn.

The Memorial Services of Sunday last were among the best ever held in this village. The church was decorated with exceeding good taste, the music was unusually fine, and the discourse by Rev. A. C. Jones was original, forcible, and eloquent, the key-note being consecration to the right. The speaker strove to impress his hearers with the thought that in no way could they better honor the memory of the martyred dead than by emulating their example of self-sacrifice in the cause of right and justice.

Decoration Day.

The exercises passed off according to program, the bright sunshine of the morning causing many people to participate in the forenoon celebration, though the summer like atmosphere made it rather warm work for the marching column.

In the afternoon people commenced to assemble early and there was promise of a large crowd. The court yard was well filled when the exercises began with the beautiful song "Soldier, Rest!", finely rendered by our male quartet; but scarcely had Judge Buck commenced his address, when the ever ready rain drops began their daily patter, and those not provided with umbrellas were compelled to beat a hasty retreat, so that the crowd did not attain its usual proportions. But the Judge showed the sturdy persistence of the veteran that he is, and continued with such energy as kept the majority of his umbrella-canopied audience in their seats throughout the mild showers that prevailed most of the time. He spoke without manuscript and with the thorough knowledge of his subject gained by three years of active service in the field, and declared that the confederate soldier was not beaten because outnumbered, or out-generated, but because he was out-fought, and that any one who said the rebels were not good fighters, was "not in it." He paid an eloquent tribute to the soldier boys "who achieved by their deaths what they could not by their lives," and showed that no material moisture could dampen the ardor of his patriotism. A solo and chorus by the members of the quartet completed the program, and the crowd hastily scattered, attended to their homes by the steady down-pour to which we are becoming so thoroughly accustomed.

At Rest.

Yesterday afternoon another funeral train traversed our streets bringing the remains of Rev. Darius Barker back to this, his old home, for burial. Here he labored for more than a decade during the time when the Episcopal society of this village was in its most flourishing condition. The good old rector was never too weary for anything he could do to advance its interests, laboring early and late in the Master's cause, and it was within this period that the neat little chapel at the east end of Main street was built and furnished. It was eminently fitting that the last earthly rite should be performed within these walls he had so dearly loved, and that his lifeless form should be laid to rest within the limits of his last field of labor.

As many may remember, Dr. Barker's failing health caused him to give the church work into the hands of Dr. Schetky some years before his final removal from Paw Paw, and in 1883 he accompanied his devoted daughter Abbie to her temporary home at Three Rivers moving thence to Decatur, whither her vocation called her, about four years ago going to Olivet where they have resided since Miss Abbie's union with Mr. Arthur Shaw.

Here, with his faithful wife at his side, the aged minister has calmly descended life's western slope, peacefully breathing his last on Sunday, May 29. His remains were accompanied hither by his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Shaw, and Bishop Gillespie. The latter conducted the funeral service, and in his remarks said, "Were I preaching a funeral sermon I should surely take as my text 'Here is an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no guile.'"

After a long and weary illness on Monday night, May 30th, Miss Beatrice Frisbie of Waverly closed her eyes in the sleep that knows no earthly waking.

A severe attack of lagrippe last December was followed by other complications, and all the efforts that were made to save the young life proved unavailing.

Just on the verge of womanhood, "standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet", she will be missed by a large number of young friends, though most of all in the home circle, the members of which may still find some measure of consolation in the thought that the tender young heart is thus saved from all life's sorrows and trials.

The friends will gather at the house for the last sad rites on Thursday at 10 a. m. and will proceed to Covey Hill church for public services at 11 o'clock.

Business Brevities.

Buy Royal Worcester Corsets at Sellick's. The best corset for wear and comfort, besides the elegance of the make-up.

The summer weather has caused the Leaders to arrange a big linen sale for next Saturday at which towels, tablecloths, and napkins will go for a song.
